Known globally as the "Flower City," Guangzhou has earned its reputation as a "Millennium Trade Hub." Since the days of the maritime Silk Road in the Qin and Han Dynasties and through the glory of the Tang, Song, Yuan, Ming, and Qing Dynasties, it has been China's oldest and continuously open international trading port, continually adding to its storied legacy.

On this dynamic land where history and modernity intersect and tradition meets innovation, Guangzhou shines as a brilliant gem on the 21st-century Maritime Silk Road. Embracing global cultural diversity with an open heart, it serves as a cultural bridge connecting China with the world.

In April 2023, President Xi Jinping, during his visit to Guangzhou, highlighted the importance for foreign investors to seize the opportunity to come to China, Guangdong, and the Greater Bay Area, deeply engaging with the Chinese market and achieving new business successes. As a key national center city, international trade hub, comprehensive transportation nexus, and global communication center, Guangzhou has long been a crucial gateway for foreign businesses looking to understand and invest in China.

Amidst unprecedented global changes, industry leaders and strategic investors from around the world are confidently choosing Guangzhou, embracing it, and establishing a strong presence here. Today, Guangzhou stands at a new historical starting point, embarking on a "second wave of entrepreneurship" with a vision to "dedicate twelve years to revitalize Guangzhou by doubling its current 3 trillion GDP." The city aims to foster a business environment that is friendly to industries, businesses, entrepreneurs, and scientists, striving for the best market conditions, optimal government services, and most reasonable overall costs. The goal is for enterprises, entrepreneurs, and scientists to thrive and succeed more rapidly in Guangzhou.

With the vast Pearl River and the majestic Baiyun Mountain as its backdrop, Guangzhou, with its unique geographical advantages, robust economic strength, and inclusive cultural charm, extends a warm welcome to investors from around the world. We invite global entrepreneurs to settle here, experience Guangzhou's innovative spirit, share in its development opportunities, and achieve mutual success between the city and businesses.

Guangzhou, the longest-standing port for foreign trade in China, has never closed its doors to international commerce.

The first foreign-funded enterprise in Chinese history, the Couper Dock, was established by the British in 1845 on Changzhou Island, Huangpu District of Guangzhou.
